

The Official Record in the Case of Leo Frank, September 1915

The Official Record in the Case of Leo Frank, September 1915 The Official Record in the Case of Leo M. Frank, Jew Pervert is an expose, by Thomas Edward Watson, published within the September, 1915, issue of Watsons Magazine. Tom Watsons review of the case, is quite possibly, the best argued, and concisely reasoned, logical presentation of the facts, and evidence, proving Leo Frank murdered Mary Phagan, inside the National Pencil Companys second floor metal room. What makes this work so powerful, is Tom Watson proves Leo Franks guilt, without using the testimony of the NPCo factory janitor James Jim Conley, the admitted Mary Phagan murder-accomplice-after-the-fact! Watsons review of the trial evidence, and testimony, superbly debunks the position of Leo Franks defenders (back then and now), who have for more than 100 years been arguing that without the testimony of Jim Conley, it would not have been possible to convict Leo Frank. Find out inside this issue of Watsons Magazine, how Tom Watson solved the Mary Phagan murder mystery, using the witness testimony of Monteen Stover, and trial statement of Leo M. Frank. When Watsons arguments, are juxtaposed against all of the witness testimony, and evidence, presented at the Leo Frank trial, it is clearly evident, the truth of Leo Franks guilt, was arrived at beyond a reasonable doubt. Be sure to read the unabridged version of the official trial brief of evidence, 1913, and Tom Watsons interpretation of the August 18, 1913, Leo Frank trial statement, regarding an admission, that amounted to an inescapable murder trial confession, set against the back drop of forensic evidence, that linked together the murder of Mary Phagan with metal room. Leo Franks courtroom revelation was originally articulated by States Prosecution attorneys Frank Arthur Hooper, and Hugh Dorsey, at the Leo

Frank Trial in late August 1913 (see the closing arguments of prosecution lawyers in American State Trials Volume X 1918 by John D. Lawson LLD), but arguably Watson does a better job at articulating the evidence. There are other works about the Leo Frank Case, written by Tom Watson, produced through his Jeffersonian Publishing Company, but his Jew Pervert magazine article stands out as the best example in all of his five major works arguing for Leo Franks guilt. Other insightful works on the Leo Frank affair include the following books, magazines, and newspapers listed below. If you read, and study these selected treatments carefully, you will be able to solve the mystery of who murdered Mary Phagan, and be able to put into perspective, the century long Jewish-Gentile conflict, that has been inspired by Hollywood spin doctors and Leo Frank partisans for more than a century.
